Children of LEMUEL RUARK and ELVINIA NORRIS are:

- i. EPSEY CORDELIA² RUARK, b. 25 Oct 1814, Morgan County, Ga.; d. Apr 1890, Morgan County, Ga.; m. (1) LITTLETON AGUSTUS WHITTEN; m. (2) ANDREW JACKSON BEAL.

Notes for EPSEY CORDELIA RUARK:

After Littleton's first wife, Catherine Head </mywhittenfamily/Families/catherine_head.html>, died in June 1833, he quickly remarried later that year to Cornelia Ruark. Littleton and Cornelia were married in December 1833 in Morgan County, Georgia. They had two sons, one in 1837 and one in 1839, before Littleton apparently deserted them around 1839. No record of a divorce has been found, but Littleton remarried again about 1843 to his "cousin" Lucinda Whitten </mywhittenfamily/Families/lucinda.html> of Alabama. According to Toni Brahier, a descendant of Cornelia's son William L. Augustus, Cornelia was the daughter of Lemuel C. Ruark of Apalachee, Morgan County, Georgia. Her father was a major land owner in northern Morgan County, owning a large amount of acreage along the Apalachee River. Toni adds this information also: "After Littleton Whitten deserted her and the boys, she married Andrew Jackson Beal of Apalachee, Georgia. On census records, they are shown with a son, George Poss Beal. George was 17 years old on the 1870 census; therefore, he was born about 1853. As Littleton left before 1840, this could be her son, although I have no proof yet....Although her name is usually shown as Espey Cornelia on the census records, marriage records, etc., it is Cordelia in her father's will. Lemuel C. Ruark must have been concerned that Littleton would try to come back, and claim some of the land as Cornelia's husband. In his will, he leaves her only a sum of money, and makes note that if anyone tries to break the will, then that person will receive nothing, and his share will revert to the other descendants. It is not known where Cornelia is buried, however, there are at least 20-30 unmarked graves in the old Ruark Cemetery where George P. Beal is buried, and one would suppose that he was buried near his mother and father. This is a most interesting old cemetery, where most of the graves are covered with piles of stones, or have only a stone at the head, and a smaller stone at the foot of the grave. We were told that the stone pile type burial was considered indian burial by most historians. The pile of stones kept wild animals, which were plentiful in those days, from digging up the graves."

CONFEDERATE GEORGIA TROOPS

44th Regiment, Georgia Infantry

44th Infantry Regiment completed its organization at Camp Stephens, near Griffin, Georgia, in March, 1862. Its companies were drawn from the counties of Henry, Jasper, Clarke, Clayton, Spalding, Putnum, Fayette, Pike, Morgan, and Greene. The regiment moved to Goldsboro, North Carolina, then arrived in Virginia just after the Battle of Seven Pines. It served in General Ripley's, Doles', and Cook's Brigade, and fought with the Army of Northern Virginia from the Seven Days' Battles to Cold Harbor. The 44th continued the fight in the Shenandoah Valley and ended the war at Appomattox. It lost sixty-four percent of the 524 engaged at Mechanicsville and fortysix percent of the 142 at Malvern Hill. The regiment reported 17 killed and 65 wounded during the Maryland Campaign, sustained 121 casualties at Chancellorsville, and of the 364 at Gettysburg, twenty percent were disabled. It surrendered with 4 officers and 73 men. The field officers were Colonels John B. Estes, Samuel P. Lumpkin, William H. Peebles, and Robert A. Smith; Lieutenant Colonel James W. Beck; and Majors Joseph W. Adams, Richard O. Banks, and John C. Key.
